Choosing Mark III

For All of Your Benefits Solutions

- ✓ Mark III continues to demonstrate a market leading position in the market consistently winning business over National Brokers based on services, strategies deployed, and leverage.
- ✓ 2024 Groups that chose Mark III:
 - ✓ Chatham County
 - ✓ City of Lenoir
 - ✓ City of Wilmington
 - ✓ Guilford County
 - ✓ Halifax County – Customer RFP
 - ✓ Person County – Customer RFP
 - ✓ Rowan County – Customer RFP
- ✓ Mark III has a 9 year relationship with the County helping it through difficult budgeting challenges and creating unique strategies.

- Vance County has been with the League of Municipalities – Municipal Insurance Trust (MIT) since 2016.
- The MIT was a very good partner for the County, but unfortunately the MIT never kept up with the funding needs.
- In managing a Medical Plan, as challenging as the decisions are to keep the funding levels moving up with claims, discipline is absolutely required.
- In 2021 – 2022 the MIT started getting behind.
- The MIT never caught up.
- Vance County's Plan performance was not unique.
- The challenge for 2025 – 2026, is the Plan has been severely underfunded and now the funding levels have to come up a threshold which will keep the Plan stable.

- There are three Medical Plan funding strategies that an employer can choose, Fully Insured, Balance Funded/Guaranteed Cost, or self-funding.
- Self-funding is the most efficient and cost-effective method to fund the Plan over time.
- Net fixed cost usually represent only 10% of Plan cost, with 90% of the cost being claims driven.
- Balanced Funded/Guaranteed Cost is the next highest strategy for funding Medical coverage with expenses greater than 20%.
- Fully Insured contract are the most expensive with expenses typically in excess of 25%.
- If one assumes the claims are the same across all funding strategies (self-funding, balance funding/GC, and fully insured) then the strategy with the lowest net expenses is the best long-term approach.

- While the benefit exposure and premium were reduced, the claims did not fall off. High claimants drove part of this story.
- The positive HRA gap provides for future flexibility. The goal should be a fund of approximately $750,000 as a reserve.

Work Session Report and Recommendations

Work Session Report and Recommendations

April 7, 2025

General Government

Committee Meetings Online. The BoCC discussed live-streaming all committee meetings via YouTube moving forward. Staff recommends moving all committee meetings to work sessions as was done on 03/17/25 if the BoCC has a desire to livestream all committee meetings. If by chance there is an urgent need that cannot wait for a work session, we can schedule a committee meeting in the BoCC meeting room. The recommendation from Randall Medlin, IT Director, is also to move the location of the committee meetings to the Commissioner's Meeting Room, and schedule them in concert with the currently scheduled work sessions. This will help address current challenges, as well as making the meeting times more predictable and increase public engagement. Staff did not get clear direction on moving forward or keep things as they are now. Recommendation: Discuss and approve or deny moving all committee meetings to work sessions effective immediately.

Robert's Rules of Order. The BoCC discussed implementing Robert's Rules of Order. After discussion, the BoCC decided not to proceed with research of implementing Robert's Rules of Order. For your information.

Social media for BoCC and members appointed to county boards. The BoCC discussed the county's policy on commissioner social media and social media accounts for those that are on appointed boards by the BoCC. After direction from Attorney Care, the BoCC has directed staff to work with Attorney Care to create a policy aimed at creating an acknowledgement that they will not speak on behalf of the government entity or other commissioners which could create liability for the county. We plan to bring this back to the BoCC sometime after the budget process is done. For your information.

GRRO Nutrition Program. The BoCC discussed the GRRO program and there were many unanswered questions. The BoCC directed staff to follow up with Henry Crews to obtain more information and bring back to the BoCC. For your information.

Properties

Youth Services Use of Eaton Johnson Gym. The BoCC discussed the use of Eaton Johnson Gym by the City of Henderson Recreation and Parks/Youth Services Department. Youth Services is 100% county funded with the office space being located at Eaton Johnson Gym. The BoCC is in favor of use of the facility for youth services, youth programming, youth games, etc. Maintenance and cleaning would be the responsibility of the City of Henderson Recreation and Parks/Youth Services department. The draft MOU has been sent to City staff for review. For your information.

Water

Additional County Water Lines. The board discussed a citizen request for the expansion of the county water system and it was determined that the requested area of expansion is within the City of Henderson water district. For your information.

Planning/Environmental

Affordable Housing. The BoCC discussed a request from Branche and Associates to educate the County on affordable housing in our county. The BoCC is okay with a presentation to a committee but there are some concerns about a potential conflict of interest. For your information.

Public Safety

Gun Control. The BoCC discussed a public comment period request to enforce gun control in the county. After discussion with the Sheriff and staff, the board decided not to implement any policies that would restrict gun control within the county. Commissioners feel as if the existing state and federal laws are sufficient in regulating firearms, and no additional local measures are necessary. As a result, residents will continue to abide by current gun laws without any new restrictions from the county. For your information.

N.C. Cooperative Extension, Vance County Center
March 2025 Monthly Report
Submitted by Annette Roberson

Agriculture/Horticulture/Small Farms/Farmers Market

The National Weather Service has noted this March to be exceptionally windy and that's been great because our agents have been moving full sail all month long! Education has been the focus, both in learning how to better serve the residents and in teaching information to those who need it.

The month began with a workshop dedicated to helping farmers markets gather more accurate data about themselves. Extension representatives learned how to better capture, analyze, and utilize the data to ensure the market is growing to serve the needs of our community in the best way possible.

Agents also learned how to prune the bad fruit from the tree- literally! A neighboring county invited extension personnel and the general public to a demonstration hosted by a local fruit farmer. Apple trees, grape vines, and even blueberries were discussed, and attendees left with a deeper understanding of the benefits and techniques of pruning just in time for the pruning season.

Speaking of "just in time," March 8th was a busy day that saw two great workshops! Responding to a call for education from vendors of the Vance County Regional Farmers Market, agents designed an educational series to be hosted across each Saturday in March, starting on March 8th. Topics included Basics of Business, Marketing at the Market, Getting to Know Your Customers, and finally Food Safety. Agents from neighboring counties were also invited to participate which resulted in attendees from Vance, Warren, Granville and Person County learning how to be a more effective market vendor.

Afterwards, there was a fantastic turnout of eager learners at the Vance County Regional Farmers Market for Backyard Chickens 101. For over an hour participants learned how to care for chickens from newly hatched chicks to mature laying hens. Topics of discussion ranged from common diseases to fundamentals of coop design and on to the basics of selling eggs at the market. Several claimed they planned to start their backyard flock immediately after the session!

Of course, our agents are willing to learn from anyone- even middle school students. Two of our agents volunteered with Vance County Soil and Water for their annual Envirothon. The day-long event is an academic competition that lets local middle and high schools create teams of 5 students that compete head-to-head, testing their knowledge in areas like forestry, current issues, soil science, and others. While there's an inherent reward for simply volunteering, the added benefit of seeing such bright minds working together was truly inspiring.

The Small Farmers' Roundtable & Resource Fair, hosted by the Eva Clayton Rural Food Institute on March 11th at Vance-Granville Community College, brought together a dynamic mix of farmers, advocates, and agricultural leaders to explore vital resources and opportunities. From beginning flocks to established farmers, the event catered to all levels, providing a platform to connect, learn, and grow.

Staff from the N.C. Cooperative Extension, including Dr. Wykia Macon, Michael Ellington, and Wayne Rowland, attended to discover new resources and engage directly with the community's agricultural needs. The highlight of the event was a roundtable discussion with representatives from N.C. Cooperative Extension, the NC Department of Agriculture, NC Soil & Water, and NRCS, offering valuable insights on support programs and funding opportunities.

Local farmer Patrick Brown underscored the importance of having a diverse "toolbox" of resources, including those from FSA, NRCS, and Extension, and highlighted the crucial role of grants like PCSC/USDA in supporting growth. Pat Ayscue, Manager of the Vance County Regional Farmers Market, shared information about this local resource, further empowering attendees.

The event also celebrated former Congresswoman Dr. Eva Clayton's continued commitment to rural agriculture, reinforcing the mission of the Eva Clayton Rural Food Institute to build sustainable, equitable food ecosystems and strengthen rural communities. This gathering was a powerful reminder of the importance of collaboration and innovation in shaping the future of North Carolina's agricultural landscape.

Finally, our agents were able to end the month with even more professional development at an Extension staff retreat. Presentations about marketing, media, and public engagement led the activities, but the opportunity to network with co-workers was just as valuable. Together, we're finding more effective ways to achieve our mission to improve the lives of our residents.

Leadership Vance Students - On March 26th, Extension Agents welcomed a group of high school students participating in the Leadership Vance program, hosted by the Henderson-Vance Chamber of Commerce, to the Vance County Regional Farmers Market. The day kicked off with a practical demonstration of how to prepare a quick, budget-friendly, and nutritious breakfast, offering students valuable skills for healthier living. The group then took a guided tour of the market, where they learned about its vital role in supporting the local economy and promoting healthier lifestyles in the area.

Students also learned why Michael Ellington, Agriculture Agent, promotes community partnerships after hearing about the teaching apiary maintained by the Vance-Warren Beekeepers, the Memorial Garden maintained by the Vance-Warren Master Gardeners, and the forthcoming community produce garden designed to engage anyone who enjoys gardening!

Finally, Micah Sharpe, the 4-H Agent, shared insights on career pathways, particularly in agriculture, and encouraged students to think about how their hobbies and available resources could lead to future careers. To demonstrate that point, the event wrapped up with a hands-on, team-based activity where students navigated robotic drones through an obstacle course, offering a fun introduction to technology in farming. Many students were surprised to find how similar the drone controls were to those used in modern farming equipment, leading Sharpe to highlight the similarities between the fun of the activity and the rewarding work that local farmers do every day.

The Vance & Warren County Beekeepers Association Monthly Meeting -

The Vance & Warren County Beekeepers Association had an exciting monthly meeting on March 10 at the Vance County Regional Farmers Market, hosted by Wayne Rowland. This month's buzz was all about swarms! Thomas and John Short shared insights on capturing and hiving swarms; a fantastic way to expand colonies. Even though the season is just getting started, swarms have already been spotted in our area! Experienced beekeepers were on hand to offer guidance, making this a great learning opportunity for beginners.

In other exciting news, the research hive bodies have arrived. John and Thomas are getting them ready for setup, and attendees got a sneak peek at what's coming next in the apiary.

And don't forget, everyone is welcome at their monthly meetings. Whether you're a seasoned beekeeper, just getting started, or simply curious about the fascinating world of bees, we'd love to have you visit. Contact Wayne Rowland for more information.

Granville Vance Warren Beginning Beekeepers Academy is Buzzing with Success

- The 2025 Granville Vance Warren Beginning Beekeepers Academy has been an incredible journey for the students, who are well on their way to becoming successful beekeepers!

On March 1st, they kicked off with an essential lesson on Diseases, Pests, and Treatments, focusing on one of the biggest challenges in beekeeping: Varroa mites. Vice President, Thomas Hanna, delivered an outstanding talk on pest management and best practices, providing valuable insight into keeping hives healthy. The enthusiasm in the room was contagious, and it was clear that the students were eager to apply their newfound knowledge to their own hives.

On March 15th, the Academy hosted an engaging Planting for Bees Workshop, where students learned about the importance of bee-friendly plants and pollination. Local gardeners joined us for a Q&A session, offering expert advice on creating pollinator-friendly landscapes. We also covered sting safety, ensuring our students are well-prepared when working with their bees. To top it all off, everyone left with at least one plant to start their very own pollinator garden.

The excitement continued March 29th with Field Day, a hands-on experience that allowed students to put their knowledge into practice. They suited up and worked directly with hives, built essential beekeeping equipment, and mastered the use of a smoker to keep their bee's calm. The opportunity to engage in real-world hive management was invaluable, and our students walked away feeling more confident in their beekeeping skills.

With each session, our beekeepers have gained the skills and experience needed to care for their colonies successfully. Their dedication and enthusiasm have been inspiring, and we are excited to see them flourish in their beekeeping journey. This academy has truly been buzzing with success!

Small Farms Week 2025: Celebrating Innovation and Community - Small Farms Week 2025 was a tremendous success, bringing together farmers, agricultural professionals, and community members to celebrate and support small-scale and limited-resource farmers. This year's theme, "NexT Gen Agriculture," highlighted the latest advancements, technologies, and strategies shaping the future of farming.

The week kicked off on Monday, March 24 in Warren County with an engaging farm tour of Brown Family Farms, followed by educational forums at the N.C. A&T University Farm Pavilion in Greensboro on Tuesday. On Wednesday, attendees participated in morning educational sessions and a special Small Farmers Appreciation Luncheon, recognizing the hard work and dedication of small-scale farmers. The event concluded on Friday in Cumberland County with another insightful farm tour at Secret Garden Bees.

A highlight of the week was the recognition of Patrick Brown of Brown Family Farms (Warren County) and James Hartman of Secret Garden Bees (Cumberland County) as the 2024 Small Farmers of the Year, honoring their contributions to sustainable agriculture and local food production.

In addition to the educational events, the N.C. Cooperative Extension, Vance County Center organized a successful nonperishable food drive to support local families in need. Several dozen pounds of donations were collected throughout the month and delivered to ACTS (Area Christians Together in Service) to help provide meals and resources to the community. Thank you to everyone who participated and contributed to making Small Farms Week a meaningful celebration of agriculture, innovation, and community impact!

Spring Gardening Workshop a Success at Vance County Regional Farmers Market - On Monday, March 31, 2025, the Vance County Regional Farmers Market hosted an engaging and informative session on Planting a Spring Vegetable Garden, presented by Wayne Rowland, Agriculture & Natural Resources Technician.

Gardeners of all experience levels gathered to learn the essentials of successful vegetable gardening, from selecting the right seeds to nurturing plants for a bountiful harvest. Attendees had the opportunity to gain expert insights, ask questions, and connect with fellow gardening enthusiasts.

The event provided valuable tips and hands-on guidance, equipping participants with the knowledge to grow their own fresh and delicious produce at home. Whether seasoned growers or beginners, everyone left inspired and ready to put their newfound skills into action.

CED/FCS - Strengthening Our Marketing Strategies - On Tuesday, March 25, our team gathered at the Bullocksville Community Building in Manson for a full day of discussion on building an effective marketing plan. We explored our individual and collective marketing strategies - identifying what's working, what isn't, and where improvements are needed.

Marketing plays a vital role in the success of our programs by increasing awareness of Extension's services and helping us better understand and engage with our audiences. As a team, we discussed ways to refine our approach and support each other in reaching our marketing goals.

We were fortunate to have three insightful speakers join us. Scott McCollum, Tech Application Specialist, and Will Woodham, Digital Content Specialist (both from Extension Information Technology), introduced us to SlickText and other upcoming platforms for enhancing digital communication. Our own Sheronica Sharp shared valuable insights on leveraging Canva and AI as powerful tools for creating impactful marketing materials.

This meeting was a great step toward developing strategies that will help us recognize our strengths, address challenges, and continue growing in our marketing efforts.

On the morning of March 11, 2025, the Advisory Leadership Council gathered for their monthly meeting, held with an atmosphere of excitement and anticipation. Dr. Macon, the meeting's facilitator, warmly welcomed ten members, including several new faces, as she outlined the council's growing expectations. The energy in the room was palpable as members looked forward to the important discussions and updates ahead.

Michael and Wayne took the floor first, offering insightful updates on the various agriculture initiatives underway. They shared progress on community gardens, which are bringing people together to grow fresh produce, and spoke about vendor education workshops that are empowering local entrepreneurs. The ongoing bee school was highlighted as a vital program for both environmental and agricultural education. They also talked about the upcoming Small Farms Week, scheduled for March 23-29, with a special Small Farms Day event set for March 26 at N. C. A&T State University.

Wykia introduced an exciting new initiative in collaboration with the Edmonds Tennis Foundation, an entrepreneur program aimed at fostering business skills and empowering local entrepreneurs. Sheila then shared news regarding the ECA President's retirement, which has led to efforts to find a new leader for the role. Wykia also mentioned the upcoming Extension Master Food Volunteer program, which will offer valuable educational opportunities for community members interested in learning about food safety, nutrition, and preparation.

Jamon took a moment to highlight the "Supporting Father Involvement" program, a heartfelt initiative designed to strengthen families and improve co-parenting relationships. He emphasized the positive impact it's having on local families and urged everyone to help spread the word so that more fathers could get involved. June also spoke about the importance of individual support sessions for those in need, encouraging members to continue their outreach efforts to help the community thrive.

In the realm of 4-H Youth Development, Micah Sharpe shared some exciting updates. The embryology program, which allows students to learn about the life cycle of chickens, is making great strides in schools. He also spoke about the upcoming poultry show, which will teach young people about responsibility and the care of animals. Micah invited everyone to participate in the Family STEM Night, an event designed to inspire youth to explore career paths in science, technology, engineering, and math.

Dr. Macon then shifted the focus to the Vance County Regional Farmers Market (VCRFM), providing updates that generated much enthusiasm. He announced the return of Electronic Benefits Transfer (EBT), Double Bucks, and Senior Vouchers to help make fresh, local produce more accessible to all. In addition, he revealed plans for a Health and Wellness event, titled Food Farmacy, which is set for May 2nd. The market's opening day is scheduled for May 3rd, and vendors are still being sought to participate. Dr. Macon also reminded everyone about the Evolution of Extension event, which will celebrate 65 years in the current building. He invited anyone with stories or memories to share them as part of the celebration.

During the discussion, Dr. Macon turned to the group for input on areas where Extension could improve, particularly in marketing to youth and schools. Dr. Bullock offered several strategies for reaching schools, while the group brainstormed ideas like creating a community bulletin board and gaining access to Dr. Sledge's Community Resource Center for sharing event information. They also discussed connecting with local organizations like the Elk Lodge to expand their reach and foster new partnerships.

The meeting concluded with a look ahead at upcoming events. Members were reminded of Time-Out Tuesday, hosted by Franklin, Granville, and Vance Smart Start, which will take place on the first three Tuesdays in April. They also discussed the Envirothon, a competition hosted by Soil and Water, scheduled for March 20th. As the meeting wrapped up, the council left energized, knowing that their efforts were making a significant impact in the community and looking forward to the continued success of their programs and initiatives.

The spirit of collaboration and commitment to community development filled the room, setting the stage for another productive and impactful month ahead.

The Extension Community Association (ECA), formerly known as the "Extension Homemakers Association," is an adult volunteer organization affiliated with N.C. Cooperative Extension. As a member of ECA, you become part of a dynamic group dedicated to personal growth, leadership development, and enhancing the quality of life in local communities. The mission of ECA is to strengthen families and communities through leadership development, volunteer work, and educational support. ECA provides opportunities for individuals to grow as leaders, engage in community service, and participate in educational programs that make a lasting impact.

On the afternoon of March 11, the Vance County Extension Community Association (ECA) gathered at the Vance County Extension Office for their monthly meeting ready to engage in another enriching session of learning and collaboration. This month's meeting was highlighted by a special program called ECA Leadership Sharing, presented by two long-standing members: retired president Lois Williams and current treasurer Lucille Alston. With more than 25 years of experience each, Lois and Lucille shared personal stories and insights from their time with the organization. Their presentation wrapped up a series of three leadership sessions aimed at encouraging greater involvement from new and existing members.

As they spoke, Lois and Lucille painted a picture of how ECA had positively impacted their lives over the years. They spoke about the rewarding experiences they've had working on community projects, volunteering their time, and attending district and state conferences. Their stories were not just about leadership; they were about how ECA had helped them grow as individuals while also making a lasting impact on their communities. Their message resonated deeply with the group, reinforcing the value of leadership involvement as the organization continues to grow.

As the meeting progressed, members looked forward to future opportunities. Plans were made for 11 members to attend the North Central ECA District Day on April 29, 2025, in Winston-Salem, NC. This event would offer a chance for members to connect with others from the district, share ideas, and learn from each other's experiences.

The conversation turned to another exciting initiative—the NC ECA Innovative Grant. The group discussed applying for the $1,000 grant to support a local project aimed at fighting food insecurity. After much discussion, it was decided that they would create a Weekend Backpack Program for one of the elementary schools in the area. This program would provide students with nutritious meals over the weekend, ensuring they had enough to eat during the days they were not in school. June Smith, Andrea Monroe, Christeen Crudrup, and Cora Hargrove volunteered to take charge of the grant application, ready to move forward and make a tangible difference in the lives of local children.

As the meeting came to a close, there was a sense of excitement and optimism in the air. Members were energized by the leadership presentation, eager to attend the upcoming District Day, and motivated to work on the Backpack Program. With a deep commitment to community service and a passion for lifelong learning, the Vance County ECA is once again proving to be a group of individuals dedicated to making their world a better place—one project at a time.

Farmer's Market - With an opening date of May 3rd, there's barely a month left to make sure the Vance County Regional Farmers Market is in order!

First, we turned to a guiding light. Eva Clayton, former NC Congresswoman, continues to serve as an inspiration for those determined to support small farmers and that's exactly why we chose to attend the Small Farmers' Roundtable and Resource Fair hosted by the Eva Clayton Rural Food Institute in early February. That can-do attitude directed all the market planning that took place thereafter and resulted in a few key highlights that we're excited to share.

Second, the market advisory board has worked tirelessly with Vance County Commissioners to improve the vendor guidelines and application process. We're ecstatic to announce we've been able to lower the application fee and completely waive the daily setup fee! We're confident this will improve vendor access and encourage market growth.

Additionally, we've formed a new "Events Committee" to encourage and facilitate greater community engagement through more frequent events! This small investment will help us drive more visitors to the market while also forming a more cohesive community. This committee is open to the public so please let us know if you're interested in helping.

Finally, we've been hard at work ensuring that the financial assistance programs launched last year are made available again this year. Despite the uncertainty with certain funding channels, we're overjoyed to reassure you that Senior Vouchers, Double Bucks, SunBucks will be making a return in 2025! These programs made a huge positive impact last year and will certainly make the market even more accessible to vendors and visitors alike in the coming season.

Parenting Program

Celebrating the Success of the Supporting Father Involvement (SFI) Program - We are excited to share the success of our recent Supporting Father Involvement (SFI) program! Two couples and three individuals completed the program, demonstrating the importance of engaged parenting and the positive impact it has on families.

Program Highlights – Session Two In Session Two, we focused on the crucial role fathers play in their children's development. Fathers contribute uniquely to their children's emotional and social growth. A powerful moment was watching the "Show

Your Love" video, where children shared how their lives were shaped by the absence of their fathers.

Parenting Styles – There's No One-Size-Fits-All We emphasized that every parent is unique and there's no perfect way to raise a child. Participants discussed how to enhance their strengths and improve areas for growth. Simple, fun activities were shared to help strengthen the bond with children, fitting easily into busy schedules.

The Powerful Presence of Dad Research shows that actively involved fathers have a lifelong impact on their children. Children with engaged dads are more likely to: • Handle life's challenges with confidence • Become effective problem-solvers • Stay in school longer • Build strong, lasting relationships • Thrive in their careers

Celebrating Our Participants! Each participant received a certificate of completion and a special swag bag. One parent was so inspired that they immediately inquired about the next series, showing the profound impact of the program.

03/14/25- Since the beginning of the year, military families have faced significant challenges accessing medical care due to issues arising from the new Tricare contract with TriWest Healthcare Alliance. TriWest took over the Tricare West Region contract on January 1, 2024, following a transition that promised to disruptions in care. However, many beneficiaries and providers have reported problem that have affected their ability to obtain necessary health care services.

One key issue is the difficulty in getting appointments with specialists. Many families, such as one Army family in Texas, have found that their coverage was mistakenly dropped, leading to confusion about their ability to access Tricare Prime. This has left them reliant on “direct care,” a more limited system where appointments are provided on a space-available basis at military clinics. Resolving these coverage issues has required hours of phone calls to TriWest, leading to significant delays in care and disruptions to necessary treatments.

The new contract is part of a larger transition that combines contracts worth a potential $136 billion for the Tricare program. The Defense Health Agency (DHA) had previously assured families that the transition would be smooth, but many issues have risen in the first months of the switch.
